Garden Committee plots set for another season

By Rick Parker

Kaimin Reporter

Although the irrigation pump will not be started until May 1, gardeners at the ASUM Student Gardens are already tilling the soil in anticipation of the coming season.

Since March 17, 46 people have registered for plots in the ASUM Student Gardens, leaving only 17 plots available.

Diana Moffett, acting chairwoman of the ASUM Garden Committee, said that the remaining spaces probably will be filled soon.

Located next to Dornblaser Stadium, the 18-by 21-foot plots are available to any student on a first-come, first-served basis for $15. The fee is used to pay for water and garbage services and equipment maintenance.

Irrigation water is pumped from a garden well for two hours a day, three days per week. The gardeners must provide their own hoses and sprinklers.

Pesticides, herbicides and inorganic fertilizers are not allowed. Leaves and other organic material are provided by ASUM for use as compost.

The plots must be cleared by Nov. 1, or a $5 cleanup fee will be assessed.

ASUM started the garden project last spring, and "it did very well," Moffett said. "I think everyone's plot flourished." Forty-four people used the plot last year.

Student exchange provides new atmospheres for living, studying

By Christine Johnson

Kaimin Contributing Reporter

Mitchell Hazama is a junior at the University of Hawaii at Manoa, but he lives in Jesse Hall.

The reason for Hazama's unusual living arrangement is that he is attending the University of Montana for one year under the National Student Exchange program.

He attends UM without having to pay out-of-state tuition, although his home is Hawaii, and he is working toward a fine arts degree at the University of Hawaii.

UM and UH are two of 62 colleges and universities in the United States that are members of the NSE program.

The program is based on a cooperative agreement that allows students to attend member schools for one year or less. Residency requirements are waived and students may pay the in-state tuition of either their home school or their host school.

Applicants must have a 2.5 grade point average and have completed their freshman year.

Students apply for several schools in order of preference, but are placed on the basis of their qualifications and the requirements of the individual schools.

According to Alan Thompson, UM's NSE coordinator, NSE is intended to give students an opportunity to live and study in other parts of the country and take advantage of classes and instructors not available at their home schools.

Hazama chose Montana because of its strong liberal arts program and because the school "seemed small enough to be personal."

He said he has particularly enjoyed the special-topics classes and visiting teachers.

"It hasn't been as hard to adjust as I expected," Hazama said. "Living away from home in a different lifestyle has made me more independent."

Brenda Flemmer, a junior in business from Kearney State College in Nebraska, said she applied for NSE because she was looking for different courses and friends.

"It's an excellent way to get in some traveling and learn about other cultures," she said.

Flemmer is chairman of the NSE Club, which is an organization for students at UM on exchange or for UM students who have returned from exchange terms. The group sponsors social activities and promotes the NSE program.

Shelly Momaney, a journalism major from California State University, Chico, said she expected Montana to be "totally

Coffin: Reagan must be replaced if arms race to stop

By Greg Moore

Kaimin Contributing Reporter

Americans' only hope for ending the arms race is to vote President Ronald Reagan out of office, the Rev. William Sloane Coffin said in a press conference Thursday.

Coffin said that Reagan's approach to the arms race is dangerous and unrealistic.

"Reagan is not interested in arms reduction," Coffin said. "He only thinks in terms of the stick. I don't know if he's cynical or naive. I'd prefer that he's a cynic than a fool. You can get at a cynic, but you can't get at a fool."

Coffin became famous in the 1960s and 70s for his activism in civil rights and peace issues.

Coffin scoffed at Reagan's claim that the Soviet Union has achieved nuclear superiority.

"The window of vulnerability has proved to be as much of a myth as the missile gap was during the Kennedy years," Coffin said. "What is superiority when you have such overkill? When we had superiority over them we couldn't stop China from going Communist, we couldn't stop the Soviets from getting the H-bomb."

Coffin ridiculed contentions that the Soviets are planning to take over the world.

"The idea that the Soviets want to march to the Atlantic Ocean is absolutely fanciful," he said. "What Bush and Reagan don't seem to get into their heads is that the Soviet Union is the only country in the world surrounded by hostile Communist nations."

Coffin predicted that Reagan will not be re-elected if he does not achieve progress in arms control negotiations, and that the Soviets know this.

"If he doesn't cut a deal with the Russians, then he's going to be in trouble," Coffin said. "The Russians say, 'Let him stew in his own juices.'"

Coffin said it is hypocritical of the American government to criticize Soviet foreign policy and human rights violations while intervening in Nicaragua and supporting an oppressive regime in El Salvador.

"We're oppressing these same civil liberties, not at home but abroad," he said.

Coffin disputed Reagan administration contentions that instability in Central America is caused by Communist intervention rather than political oppression.

"These rich, powerful guys are so far removed from a revolution that they don't even know what makes a revolution," he said. "The Communists happen to be on the side of revolts but that's a far cry from saying they started it."

The Rev. Coffin

Coffin said that pastors of both the Left and the Right have an obligation to become involved to some extent in the political process.

"Issues of war and peace are religious issues," he said. "My objection to Jerry Falwell is his selection of issues. I don't think they're very biblical. Christ was a lot more interested in issues of poverty than he was in sex."

Asked if Reagan is a born-again Christian, Coffin responded, "A preemie at best."

Coffin said that he had some reservations about the use of civil disobedience as a tool for combating the arms race.

"The danger is that you do things that make you feel good but don't improve the situation."

He also said that it is essential that such activities be done "by people who clearly have love and not hate in their hearts."

Coffin cautioned those in the disarmament movement not to become prisoners of their own fear and cynicism.

Choice of SAC director poses tough question for Bolinger

By John Glenn
Kaimin Reporter

Will Freeman and Butch Turk are both "outstanding applicants" for the position of director of the Student Action Center, and the choice will be difficult, ASUM President David Bolinger said yesterday.

Bolinger will interview the two candidates today and present his choice to Central Board for approval on Wednesday.

Bolinger said he is looking for a director that has excellent organizational skills.

Groups have been wasting a lot of the money allocated to them by ASUM because they "have seriously lacked organizational skills," he said, adding that he is going to stress those skills when making his choice for the new SAC director.

The director must also have definitive purposes, goals and the foresight to make SAC a better organization, he said.

Originally there were three applicants for the SAC job, but Beth Wolfson dropped out after deciding that she would not have the time to do the job well, Bolinger said.

Freeman has been involved with SAC since 1981 and has been the business manager for the Clark Fork Free Press, SAC's alternative newspaper, for the last year.

Freeman said he would like to change SAC's methods of communication. SAC needs "a creative way of getting our point across," he said.

Turk has been with SAC since 1979 and has just returned from Helena, where he served as a legislative aide.

Turk said he would like to "get students involved in the political and social events that surround them."

Freeman said he would like to "completely revamp" the Clark Fork Free Press by changing its style, content and by making sure people can rely on the paper's coming out on time.

Turk said he would like to see the paper more involved with SAC issues and that since the director chooses the editor for the paper, he would like to give the editor the control.

UM's presentation of Gilbert and Sullivan's "The Mikado" a success

By Deb Scherer

Kaimin Fine Arts Editor

Opera a la Carte's presentation of Gilbert and Sullivan's The Mikado opened to a highly receptive audience and a very crowded University Theater last Tuesday night.

And rightly so, for the performance was truly stunning.

The curtain was drawn at 8:10 p.m., and for the next two hours the entire audience was completely enamored of the little town of Titipu and its beguiling inhabitants. The 15-minute intermission between the acts came more as an interruption than as the welcome respite it is more often considered to be.

Though only piano was used to accompany the production, superb direction on the part of conductor Frank Fetta as well as outstanding performance by the pianists ensured that Sullivan's compositions held their own for the entire performance.

Finally, and most important of all, Opera a la Carte's performance preserved, and even enhanced, the spirit of The Mikado as intended by its composers. The often harsh, but always accurate parody of the production was allowed to stand on its own; unencumbered by needless sight gags and ridiculous schtick. The crime of many other companies performing Gilbert and Sullivan, that of changing sublime satire into grotesque low comedy, has been successfully avoided by the Opera a la Carte troupe.

Review

Performances by all the actors involved in this production were excellent. The highest achievement of the evening, however, was Jim Rule's interpretation of Ko-Ko. Singing with mad impetuosity of the people he would eliminate (in his capacity as Lord High Executioner of Titipu) were he allowed, including "those who chew on peppermints, then breathe them in your face," his arms and legs pinwheeling wildly about, Rule was a whirlwind of exuberance.

Other exceptional performances were given by Richard Sheldon, director of the opera company, and Rollin Lofdahl. Sheldon's performance as the Mikado, most especially his rendition of the song "Let the Punishment Fit the Crime," was high satire in its best form.

UM athletes face busy schedule this weekend

By Dan Carter

Kaimin Sports Editor

Sports fans of all kinds can witness their favorite pastime this weekend when the University of Montana showcases a full slate of athletic events.

The UM baseball club will host Idaho State in a three-game series beginning tomorrow at 3:30 p.m. Games will continue Sunday at 10 a.m. and 12:30 p.m. All games will be held at Campbell Field.

According to player-coach Mark Simpson, the 25-player team has been blessed with good weather and is "way ahead of last year."

The UM women's tennis team will make its only home appearance of the season as it hosts the UM Invitational. The tournament is scheduled to start at 2 p.m. today and at 9 p.m. tomorrow.

The women netters are in a building year, according to first-year coach Kris Nord, and the team brings a lot of young players into the tournament.

"They are young in age," Nord said, "but are also young in playing experience. But every single person on the team has greatly improved since the first match."

Men's and women's tracksters will be in action as the teams hosts the 17th annual Harry Adams Relays this weekend at Dornblaser Field.

The meet, which also includes high school teams from throughout the region, will begin at 3 p.m. today and continue at 9 a.m. Saturday.

The UM men's golf team will also host an invitational. The UM Invitational begins today at 8 a.m. at the Missoula Country Club and at Larchmont Golf Course at 1:30 p.m. Action will continue tomorrow at the Missoula Country Club at 8 a.m.
